Intellectual Property Rights are a set of exclusive rights protected by law which are accorded to inventor or creator to protect his invention or creation for a certain period of time. Intellectual Property has been the fuel that powers the engine of prosperity, creativity, fostering invention and innovation.

In today's globally competitive environment, intellectual property has placed itself on a pedestal in the context of economic growth and is becoming increasingly important.

The increasing significance of intangible assets in the global economy is forcing academic institutions to actively manage their Intellectual Property as a key drive for building and sustaining their competitive advantage, creativity, invention and innovation, for achieving superior performance.

Thus IPR, in this way aids the economic development of a country by promoting healthy competition and encouraging scientific innovations& inventions, industrial development and economic growth.

Intellectual Property Rights are now being used not only as a tool to protect creativity and generate revenue but also to build strategic alliances for socio-economic and
