

One Day Fluid Classroom Workshop on Literary Methodology

24/02/2020

A workshop on literary methodology was organised on 24/02/2020. Dr. Kalyani vallath, Director, Vallath's TES and Chief Coordinator of E ProF, Thiruvananthapuram, Kerala was the resource person. Dr. Kalyani Vallath is an educational entrepreneur, editor and teacher of English literature from India. Vallath compiled A Contemporary Encyclopedia of British Literature and runs Total English Solutions in Thiruvananthapuram to help teach English to people living in rural parts of India. Vallath has been experimenting with Active learning, Blended learning, Experiential learning and the application of Montessori education methods for adults, employing games, drama and innovative classroom activities to make English studies interesting for Indian students.

Dr. Kalyani Vallath through her innovative and interactive teaching style has attracted thousands of students to her classes. She has introduced the basics of literary theories to the students. Her classes were interactive in nature and through various common place examples she could analyse the highly theoretical principles. Dr. Kalyani Vallath has mentioned various theoretical texts which introduces the fundamental principles of literary theories to the beginners. The class was highly effective for the student community. Literary theory consists of various principles, beliefs and underlying ideas that are used to understand and analyse different pieces of texts in literature. Literary theories give an idea about how to read a text from multiple perspectives. It enables a critical understanding of a text. Literary theories are foundations for the literature students to know the development of various philosophies over the years.
